Vol. 68 No. 8 Cynthiana, Kentucky August 31, 2017

Minister's Message:

This past Sunday was the last for two worship services. I appreciate all the efforts of those who assisted in this time of worship enjoyed by so many. We do things a little different for those first services, we have excellent worship leaders, usually the special music is done by an individual or a group. Pam has done a fabulous job of providing such beautiful music for us all summer. We also take communion by intinction. We use our youth to serve the elements and they perform their duties with both reverence and inspiration. As you receive the elements, you are reminded, "This is the body broken for you, this is the blood shed for you." We also have youth receiving the offering on those first services. This past Sunday one of our young offering collectors made what I thought was a very wise affirmation. The young man receiving the offering was Brennan Hoskins, I refer to him often as my young theologian in residence. As some people his age passed by depositing their offering in his tray, he reassured them "God's money spent for you. God's money spent for you." I think his response then continued to some adults and anyone who was coming his way to get back to their seats. Brennan, I like that. Whatever we have in life, time, talent, or treasure belongs to God. Most of what we offer comes back to minister to us and those around us. Those resources also then go forth from Main and Mill to assist others in their particular needs. Much of the money we share with the church goes to other parts of our nation and other parts of our world. As we enter our Capital Campaign I want us to know that we are the possessors of God's many gifts. When we give we continue that legacy of faith, the one that others have left for us. Speaking of needs, we are all in prayer for our friends in Texas who are in deep moments of suffering. It is hard to believe what we see on the news. It is comforting to know that already some of your Week of Compassion gifts are on their way to assist in needed ministries. With that in mind, I have decided that we need to receive a Week of Compassion offering for the next two weeks. Envelopes will be in the pew pockets on Sunday. Our scripture lesson for Sunday will be Exodus 3:1-15 and the sermon entitled, "That's All I Would Do All Day." This Sunday will also be a day of commission for new church leaders, campaign leaders, and prayer partners of the congregation.
